Scrapbook Of Memories

A crackling of pages and suddenly the air is alive with past memories. Looking at the scrapbook full of pictures that made up the best years of your life, the good old times begin pouring out.

Pictures carefully placed to trigger your thoughts back to the happenings of the year 1976. Soon you find your eyes glancing rapidly over the pages. Pages filled with friends, administrators, classmates, and teachers.

People you knew, places you went, things you did, ALL in your SCRAPBOOK OF MEMORIES.

Farewell, Mrs. Jones

"Being a teacher is the most rewarding vocation a person can have," states Mrs. Martha Jones, senior English teacher, as she retires in 1976. Mrs. Jones has been teaching for 29 and one half years; 27 of those years were at Wabash High.

She is a graduate of Wabash High. Mrs. Jones attended many different colleges in many places. She recieved her Bachelor's Degree from I.U. as well as her Masters of Arts for teachers. She did graduate work at Depaw, University of Arizona, and the University of Oklahoma. Mrs. Jones has been at the Inter University of Utah; and she has had fellowships at I.U., and Purdue for graduate studies. She has also attended seminars at Bedford College in London, and at New College in Oxford, England.

Mrs. Jones has recieved many honors and awards. She was a panelist for the National Council for Teachers of English. She was the Director of the Northeast Indiana Council of Teachers of English. She was a head of the English Commission for Upper Wabash Study Commission. Mrs. Jones was one of the first to recieve one on the Eli Lilly Fellowships granted for study of the Bible. In 1975, she was awarded the Book of Golden Deeds by the Exchange Club, and she was an Honorary Citizen of Wabash in 1973. She was then presented with the Key to the City. She is a member of Pi Lambda Theta Sorority which is for women in education.

POWDERPUFF VICTORY!

Senior girls were victorious in the pre-homecoming powderpuff football game. Each class formed a girls football team as a spirit raising effort for homecoming. Freshman girls played jujniors and seniors played sophomores. Then for the playoff the seniors met the juniors and the seniors came out victorious. Players for the seniors were (from left to right): Lisa Yeates, Rhonda Foltz, Elaine Hipskind, Mary Ann Rager, Lorie Novkov, Lisa Howard, Tina Sample, Connie Christman, and , Terri Wilcox. 2nd row: Kim Grogg, Chris Gunderman, Vickie Hein, Karen McVicker, Amy Harris, Mary Fulton, Sandra Mathieson, Bonnie Fulton, Donna Hill, Melissa Prothe, and Susan Shambaugh. Coaches for the girls were: Steve Fox, Jeff Boyer, Sam Berry, Eric Noonan, Sam George.

Since the girls were taking boys roles, obviously the only course the boys had were to take the girls roles. good looking Eric Noonan, Scott Shears, Tom Knafel, Thom Pence, and Joe Eddingfield. They kept the fans cheering their teams on.

The powderpuff was put on mainly as a spirit-raiser for Homecoming and it did its job. After the game there was a caravan and a bonfire. The spirit and excitement was so thick you could almost see it. Although thwent out quickly it left everone in awe and anticipation of the game the next night.

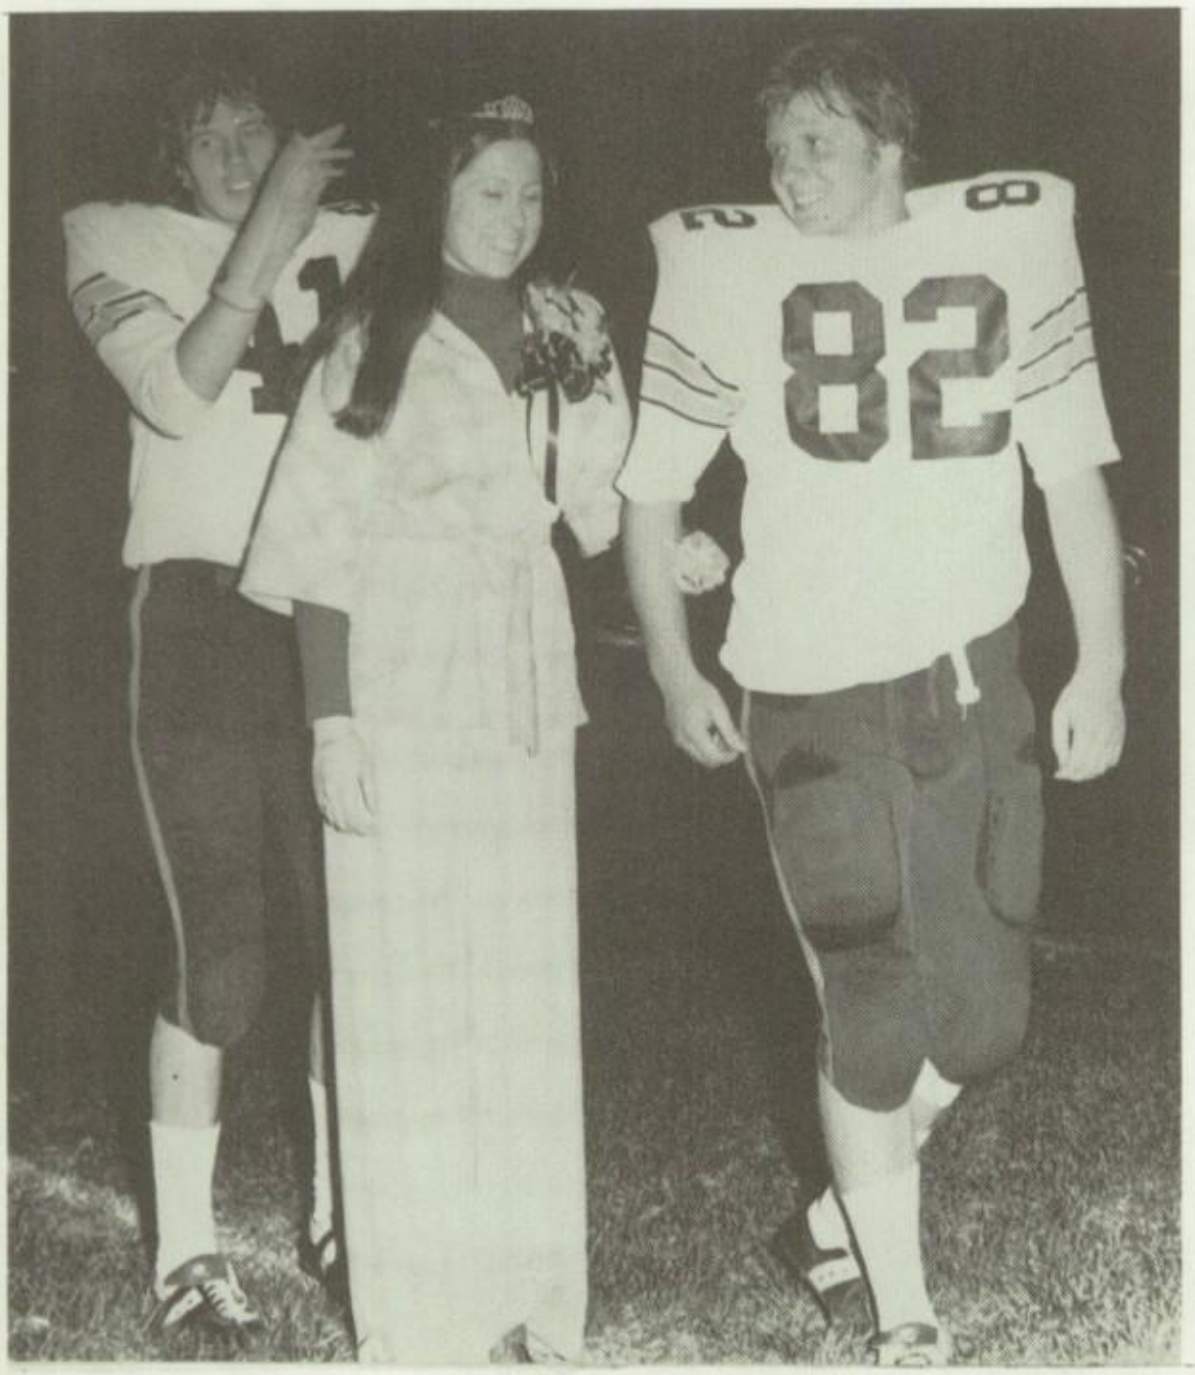
Flower parties are a big part of homecoming. They are intended for people to work and make as many flowers as possible, but this is not always true. Flower parties are supposed to be fun but the work needs to be done if a good float is expected.

FLOWERS,

FLOATS,

VICTORY...

There was not too much goofing around this year as there was not much time to bet the flowers done and the float built. Many hard working students put their efforts into the floats and prayed for the winning float.



HOMEC

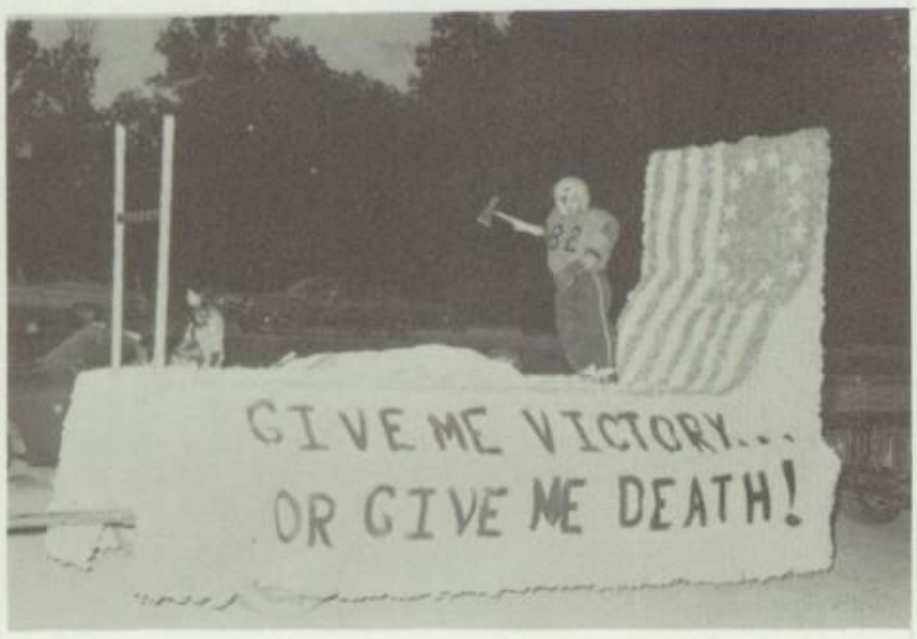
Homecoming

the cars paraded around the field once, twice, with the floats and the carloads of beaming queen candidates, queens court and their escorts. A hushed suspense settled on the crowd-it was time to announce the queen and king. Eric Noonan was king. A cheer went up from the crowd as Eric crowned his queen, Leslie Knight.

Floats were then decided on. After all the hard work put on the floats the students were ready to finally have the winners announced. Third place was filled by the sophomore class, with a theme of "Give me Victory...or Give me Death." Second place was taken by the juniors whose theme was "Apaches are Coming!" Another first place taken by the seniors, their float's theme was "Happy Birthday America, We've Got a Victory in our hands."

All classes put in a great effort and all three floats were very good.

OMING '76



Sophomore court consisted of Lorie Eilts, escort Rick Howell, and Lisa Eschmann, escort Ray Bruss.

In the junior court were Julie Hipskind, escort Tim Russell, and Liz Kruckenburg, escort Tim Eilts.

HARVEST

evening in Paris . . .

The Tri-Hi-Y girls worked diligently to plan and decorate for the Harvest Ball, praying for it to turn out nice. After deciding on approximately four different themes, the girls finally chose "An Evening in Paris".

The dance was held in the Honeywell Community Center's gymnasium this year, instead of the high school cafeteria.

Death be it proud, a dear friend it has taken to an unknown world, built about the clouds. She left some mighty shaken, but gave them strength to make it, with the memories that would stretch a mile. We'll laugh and cry for just awhile. Then for her sake and without vile we'll go on and do things with a smile.

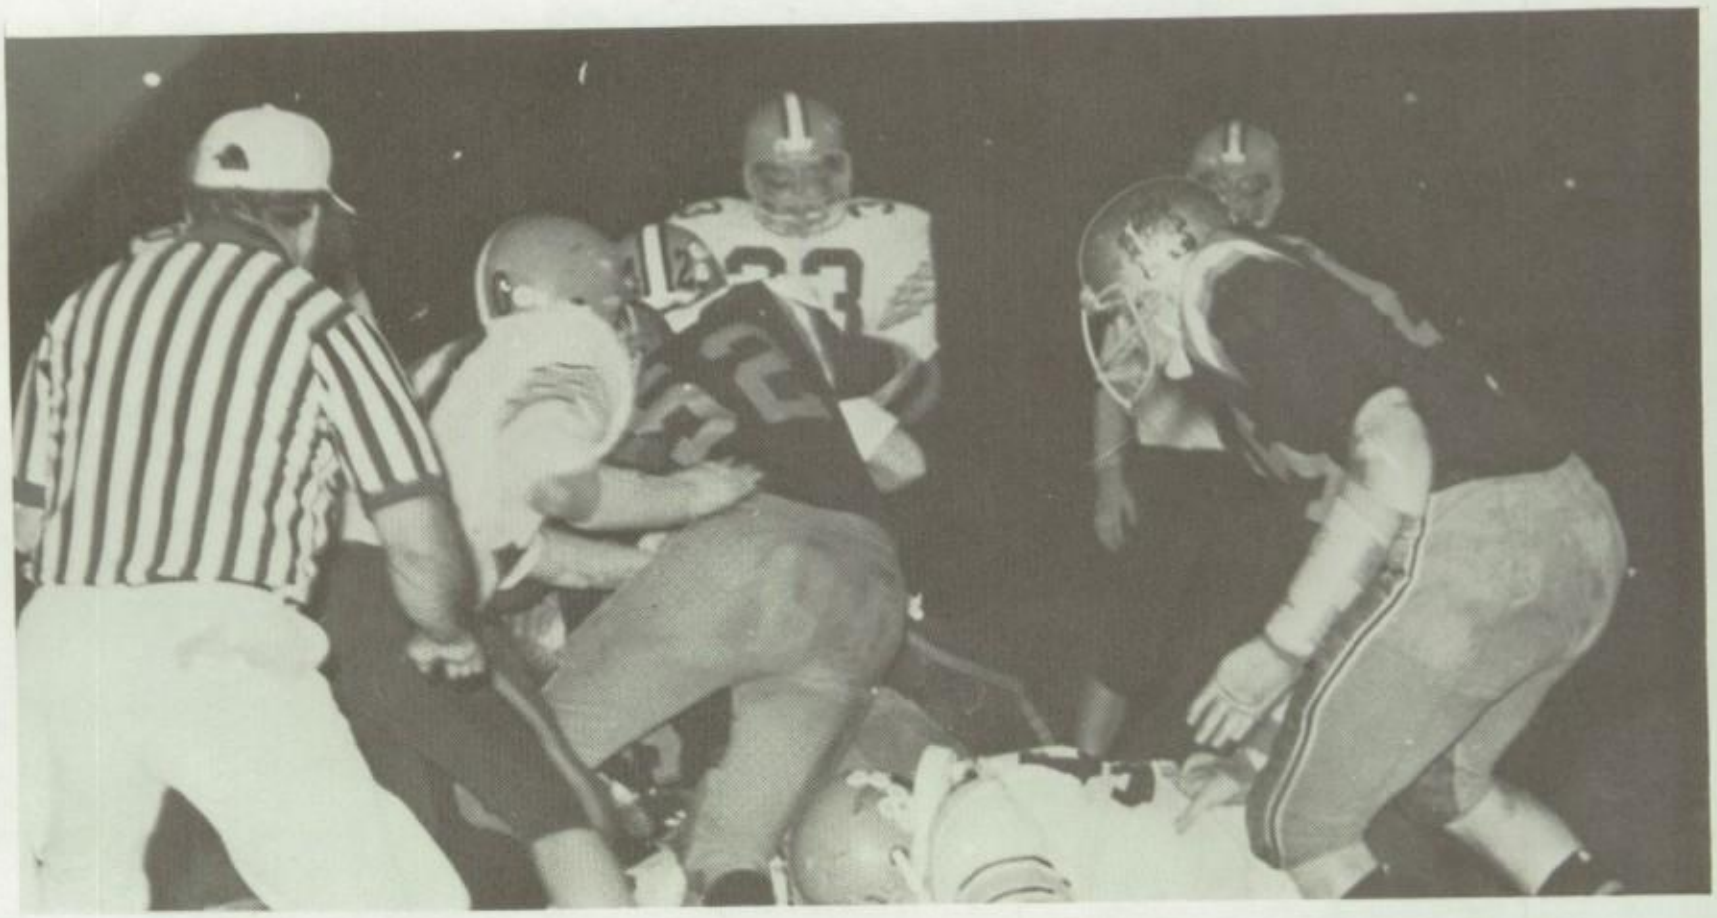
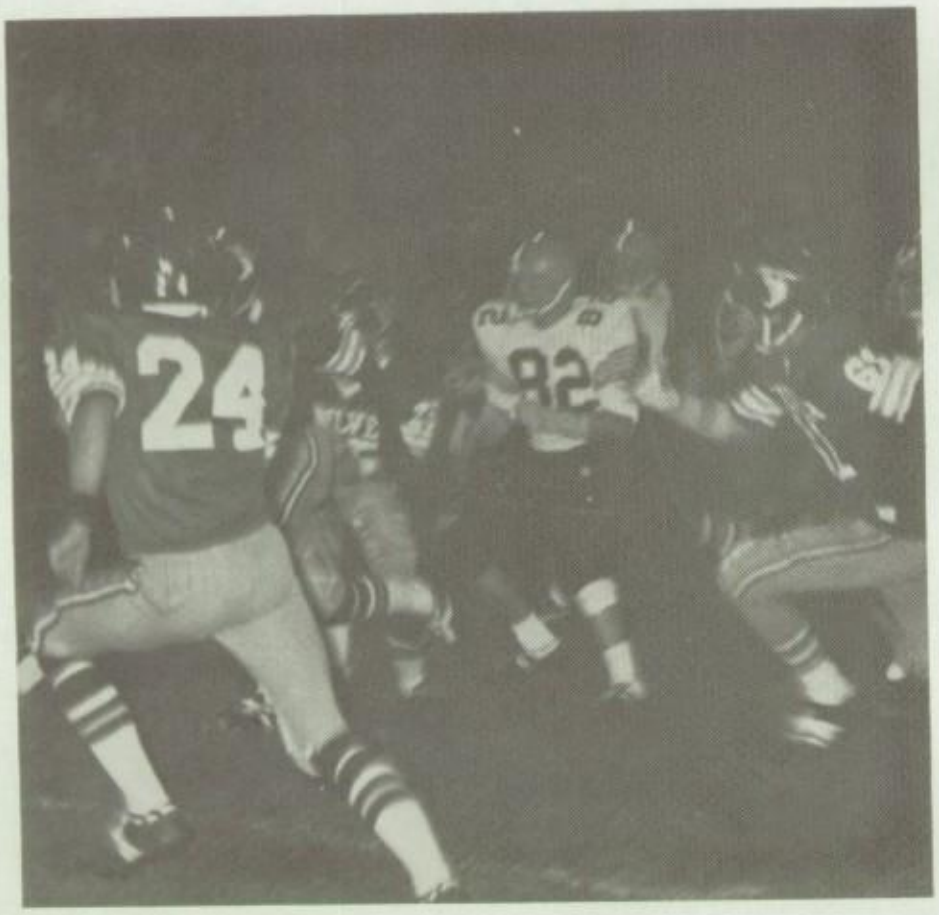
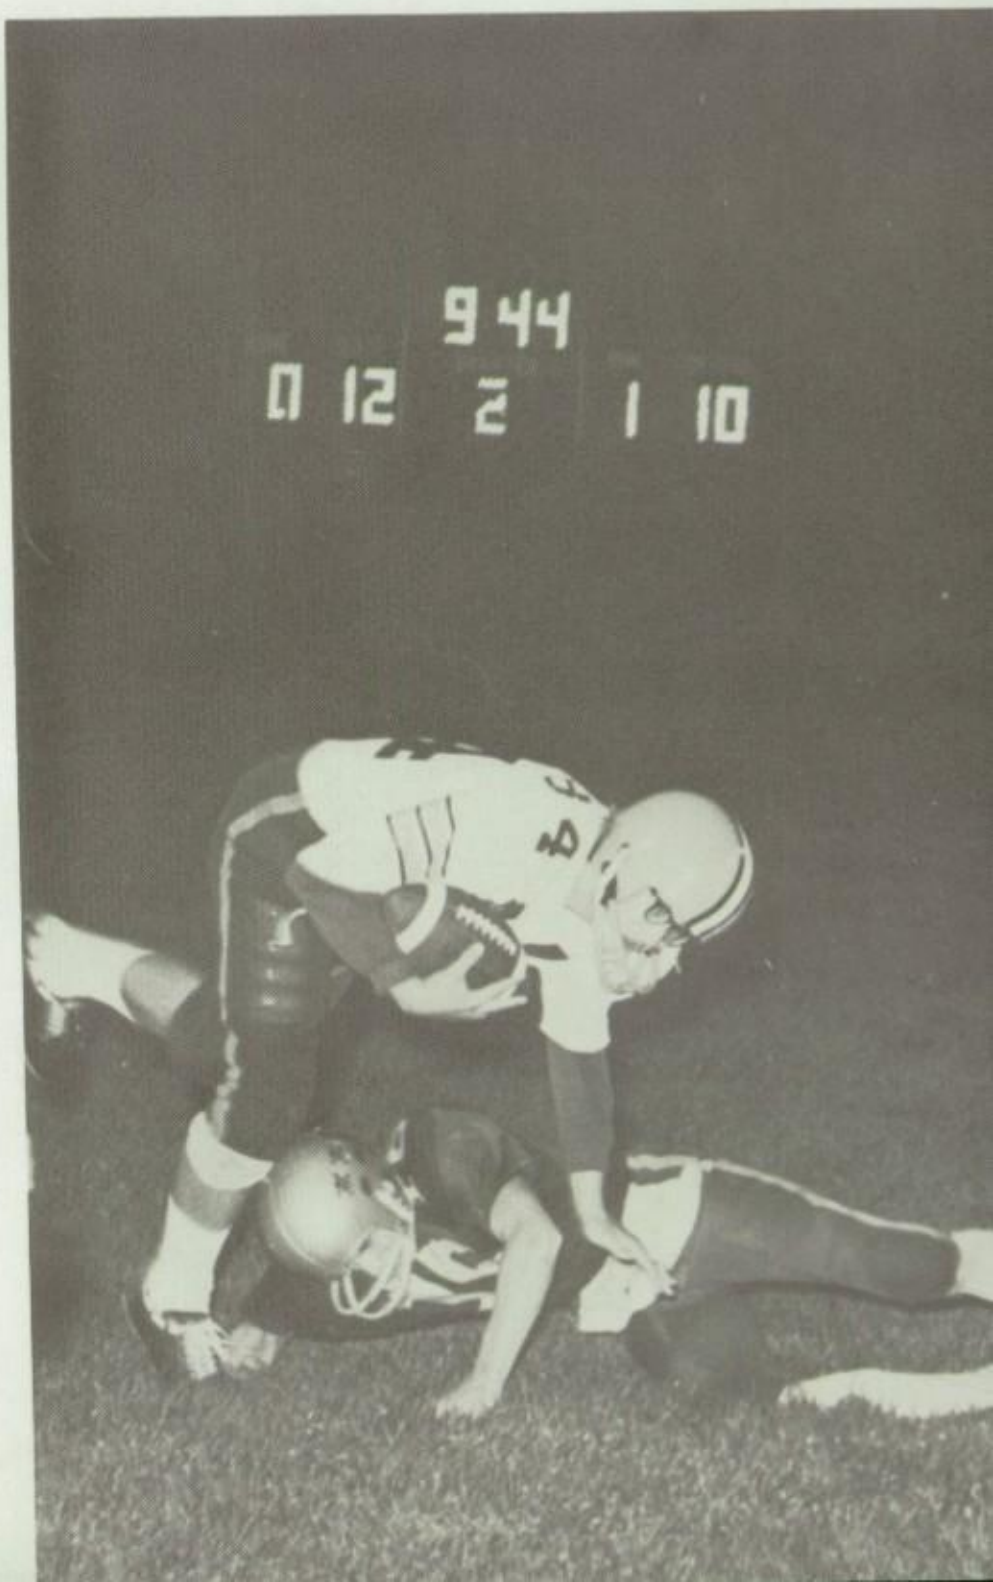
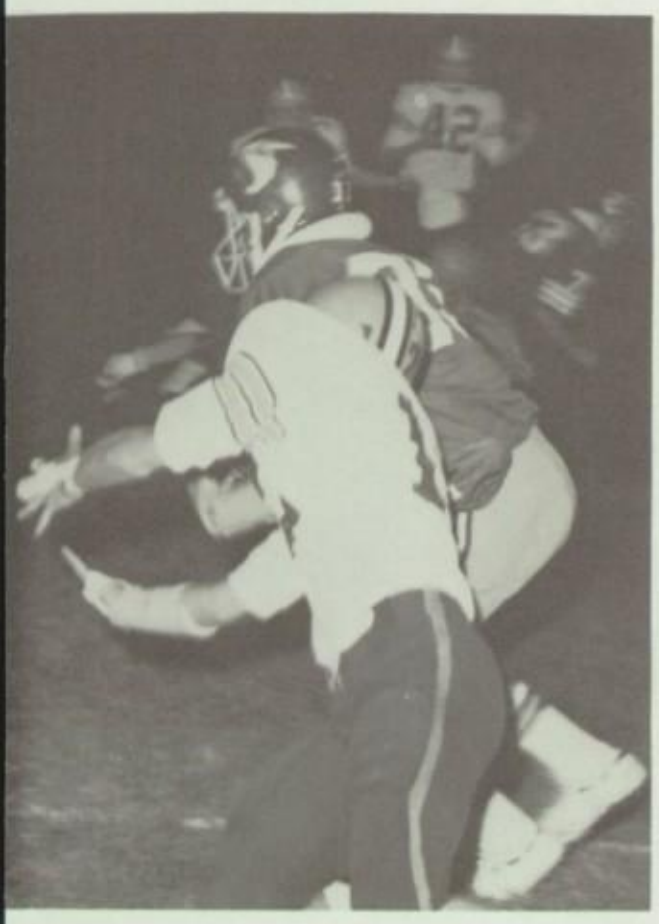
Gridders Grind to 4-6 Season









When the 1975-76 football season was ready to start, people saw little hope for football in Wabash. But after the first game, those hopes simply flew through the goalposts. The fighting Apache football team finished with a 4—6 record. Even though they had a losing record, they still played their hearts out.

The season started in a big way when Wabash upset Tipton 12—8 on two long runs. The Apaches then lost the next three before defeating Mississenewa 7—6 on a long run with less than a minute to play. After bowing to Culver and powerhouse Blackford, Wabash squeezed past Warsaw 9—6 on a wind—blown field goal in the first quarter.

The wind turned in favor of the enemy the next week, as an extra—point try was blown away. The season ended with a 35—20 rout of Madison Grant.

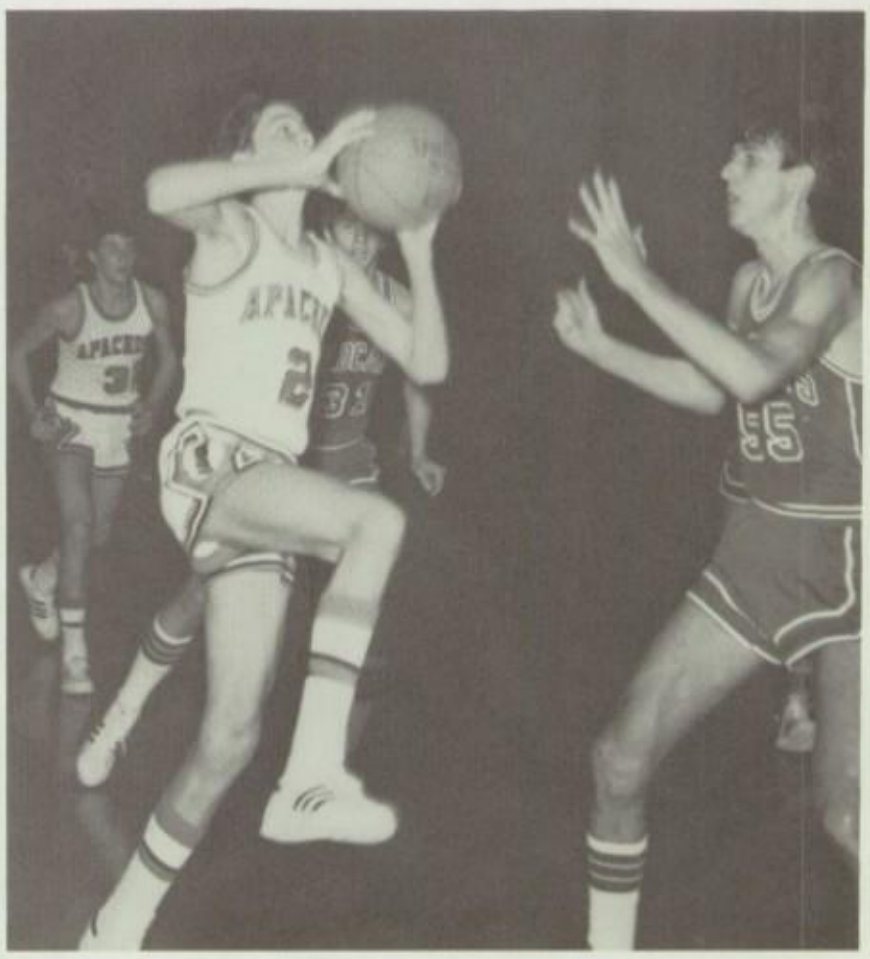
1975-76 was a rebuilding year for basketball at W.H.S. With only two players left from last year's squad, the Apaches were very inexperienced.

The Apaches opened the season against defending champs, Marion. They were impressive even though they lost. They then lost four more times before beating Eastern 73-66. A week later against Madison-Grant, the Apaches won one of the most thrilling games ever. Trailing by six points midway through the fourth quarter, the Apaches fought back to a 63-63 deadlock. After a Madison-Grant miss with five seconds left, sophomore Tim Mylin released a shot from half-court. The ball hit nothing but the net, and the fans went crazy.

Junior center Stan Leland, along with being the teams best scorer and rebounder was named Most Valuable Player.



Sophomore forward, Tim Mylin was the best field goal shooter on the team.

The win was to help the team in the Holiday Tournament, but the Apaches lost to Southwood 65-64.

The second half of the season started with Whitko; the Apaches lost that one 52-47. The Apaches then lost three more, leaving them with a 2-10 record after 12 games. Wabash then traveled to Huntington's new gymnasium where they played well but lost 82-66. New-comer Southern Wells was next, and they made an impressive debut, winning 92-78. County rival Northfield came to Wabash and played a real barn-burner before the Apaches came out on top by a 52-51 count. The next week the Apaches lost a conference game to Elwood by 10, and a heartbreaker to another new-comer, Eastbrook, 57-56. After a hard luck loss to Alexandria 71-60, Wabash closed out the season at Mississenewa, losing 91-54. In the sectional Wabash made a determined try after being down 12 points, before losing to Southwood 58-55. They closed out the year with a 3-17 record.

Wabash's 1976 gymnastics squad leaped and tumbled their way to another fine season. With about all of its members back. The team finished with an 8-6 record. Juniors Rick Prickett, Tom Knafel' Ken Casey, and Scott Shears were the leaders on the team with Prickett finishing fifth in the state in his competition. And Shears was named Most Valuable Players. Among some underclassmen who performed well were Sophomore Fred LaSlle' who also went to the state finals, Donny Osborne, a fine all-around performer.

Girls Compete With Other Schools

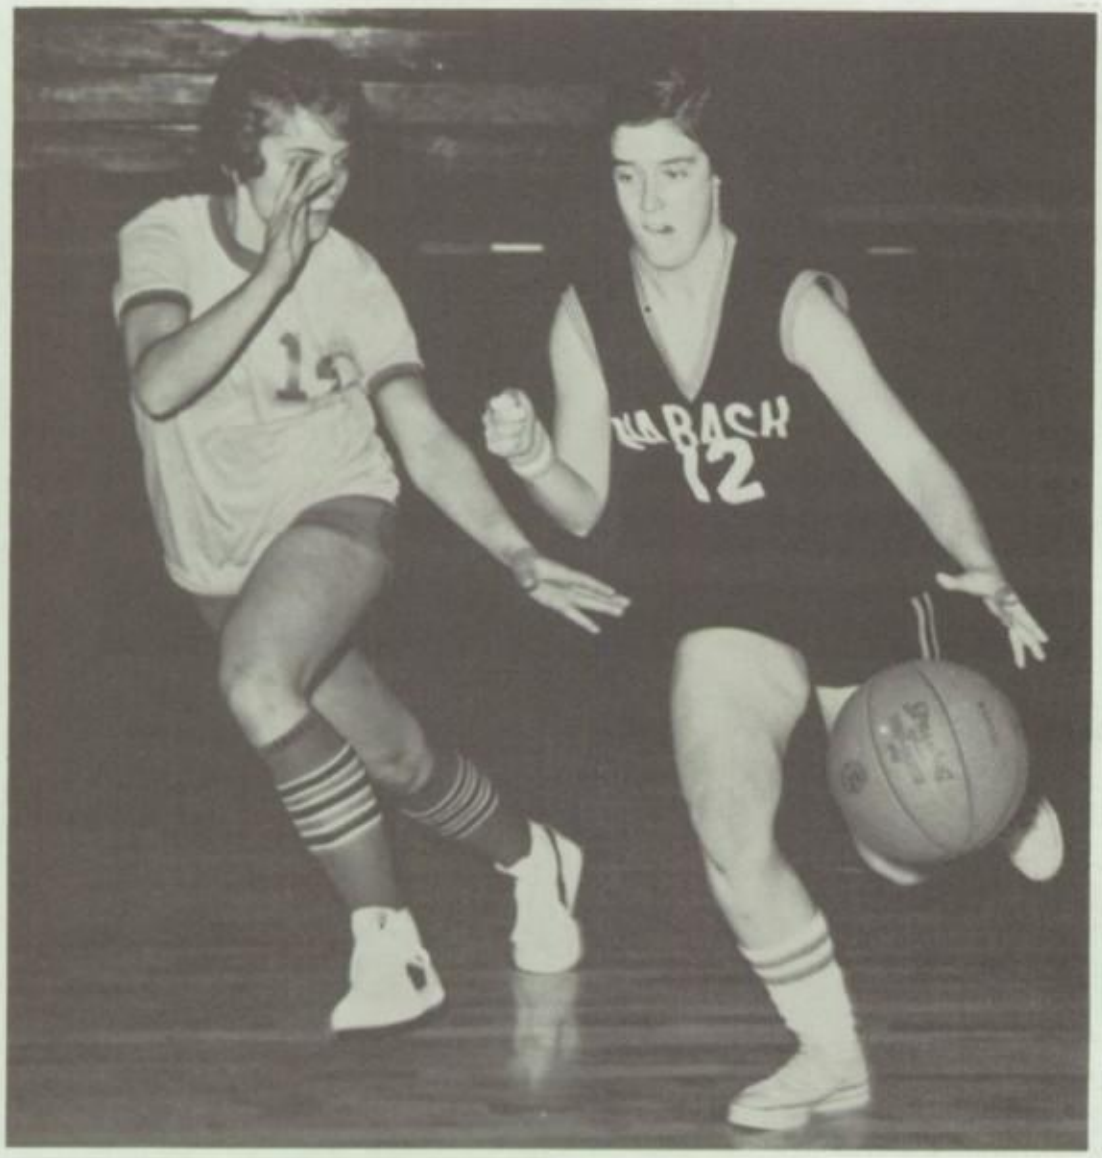
O.K., ball, you've had it now!

The first year of girls competition in volleyball and basketball was a fairly good success.

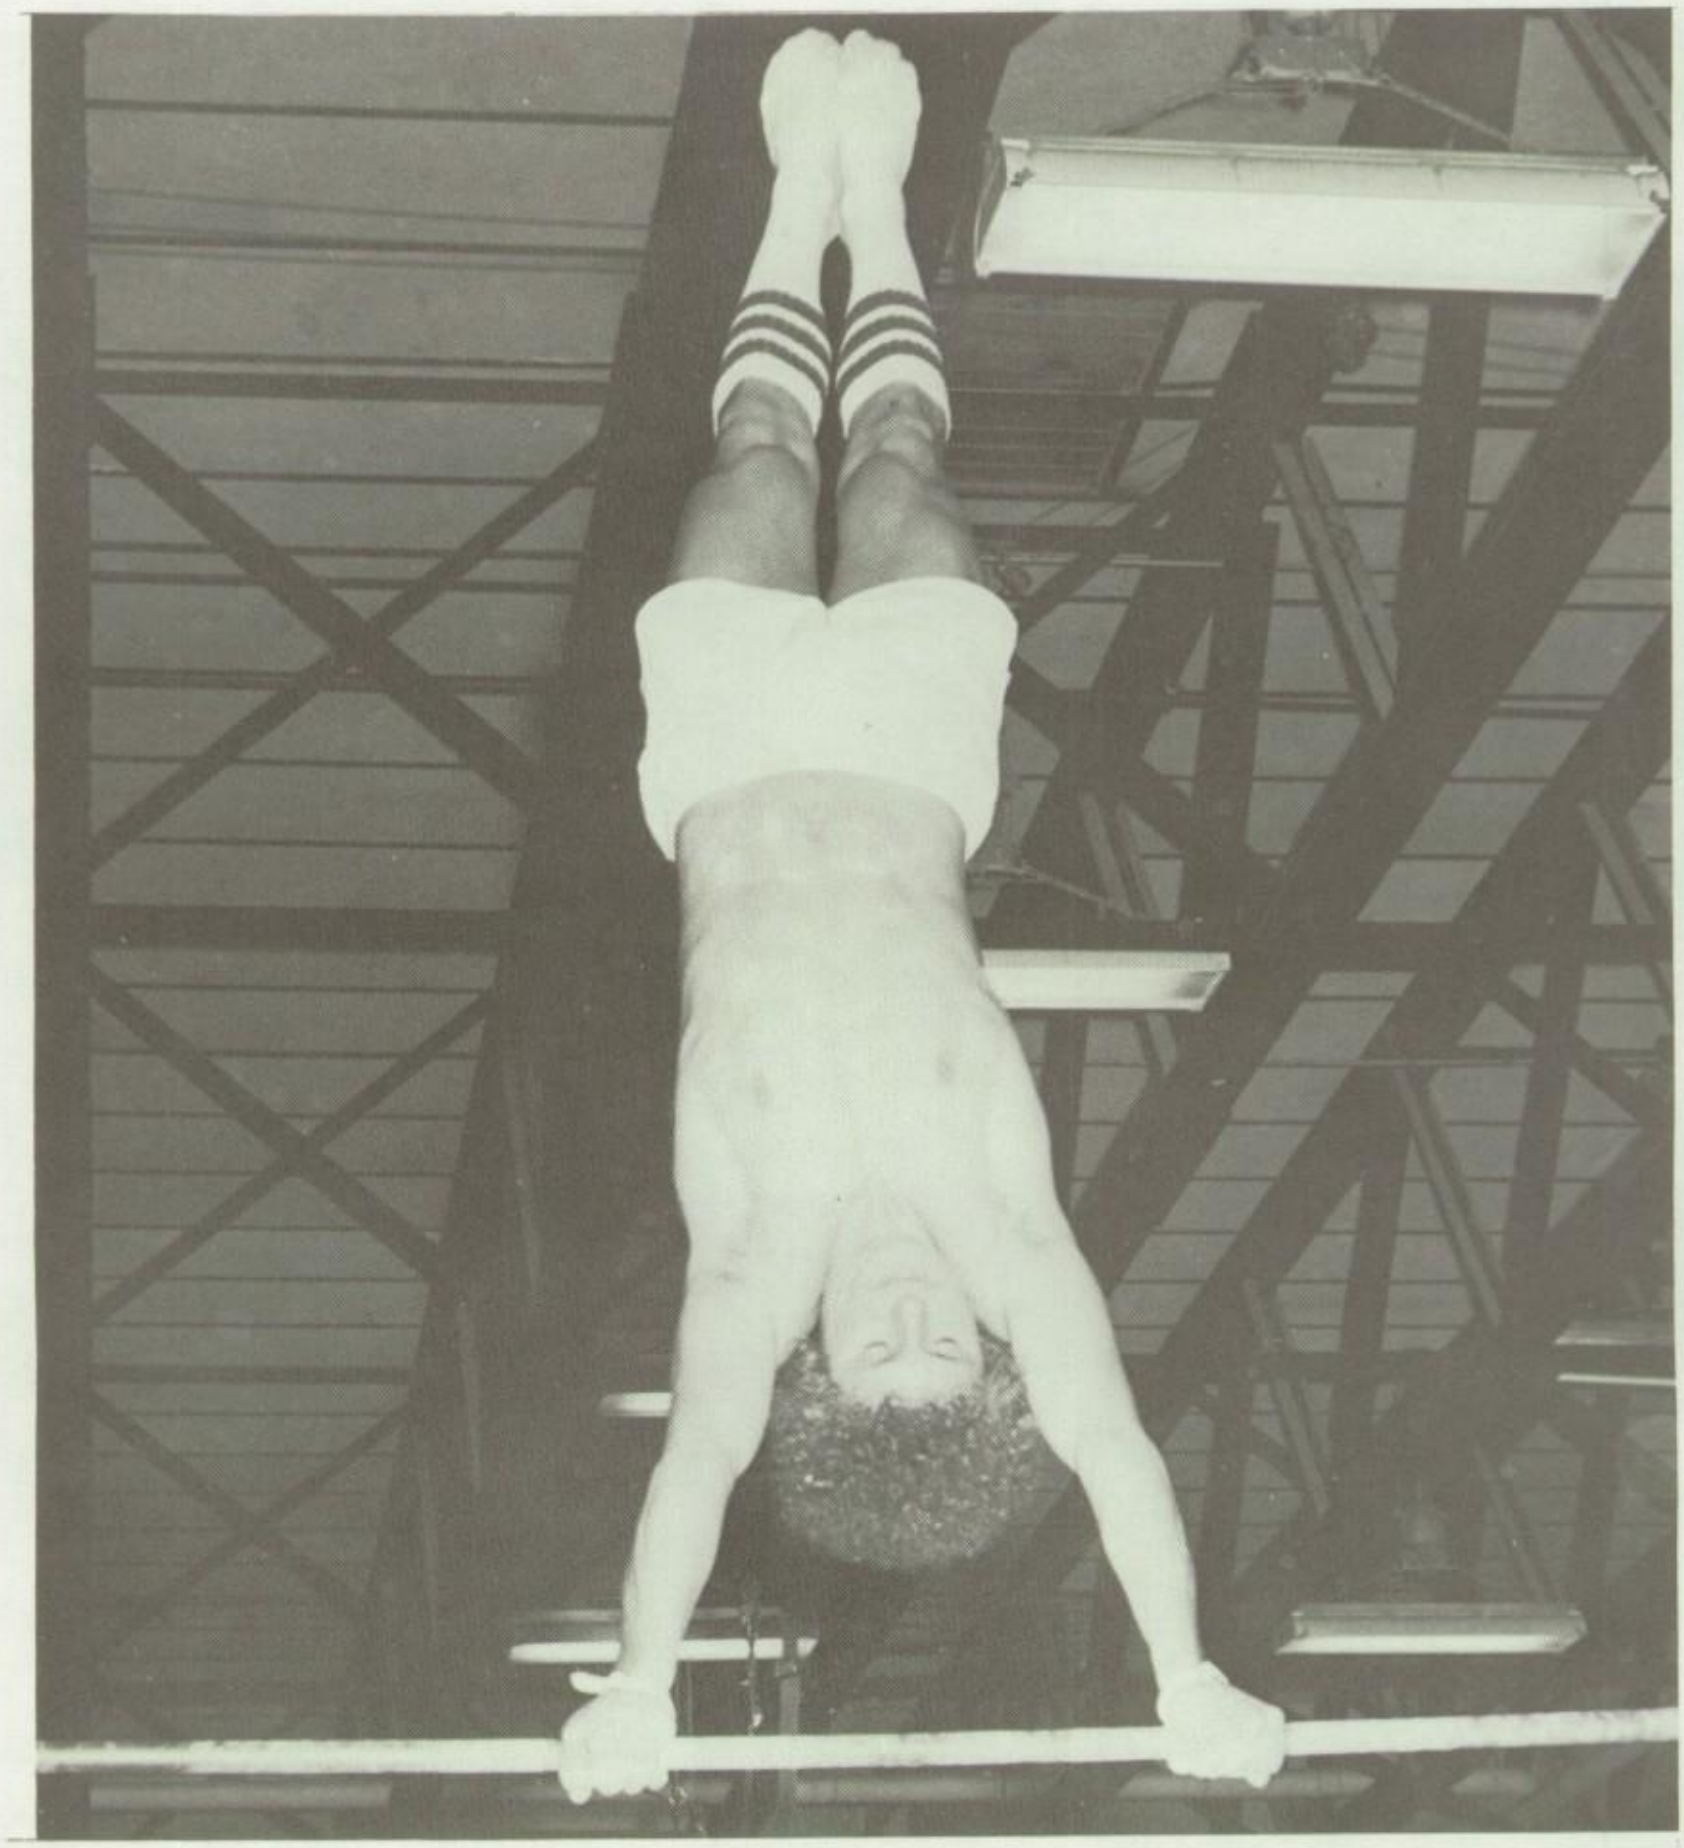
The won-lost record was not very good' but they still enjoyed the opportunity to battle with other schools.

On the other hand, the girls tennis squad had a good year. The teams, coached by Nancy Crampton' had a good number of underclassmen to give them some hope for the future.

Senior, Donna Hill, who recieved the first girls Gridiron Award, was a member of all three squads' and senior Melissa Prothe was a menber of the tennis team. One good underunderclassman was junior Mary Dragoo, who also participated in all three activities.



Mary Dragoo drives past defender.



Senior Scott Shears pretends he is superman.

"Fore" was a familiar saying as the golf team drove and putted their way to a fairly good year.

The leader of the squad ,senior Brad Olsen, was constantly the lowest scorer. Juniors, Gregg Brown and Larry Clevenger were also fine performers. The rest of the squad was compiled of sophomores.

Mr. Claude Markstahler was the teams coach.

Look Coach, no feet.

Fred Huffman, shown teaching industrial arts, resigned his six year post as head basketball coach at Wabash in the spring.

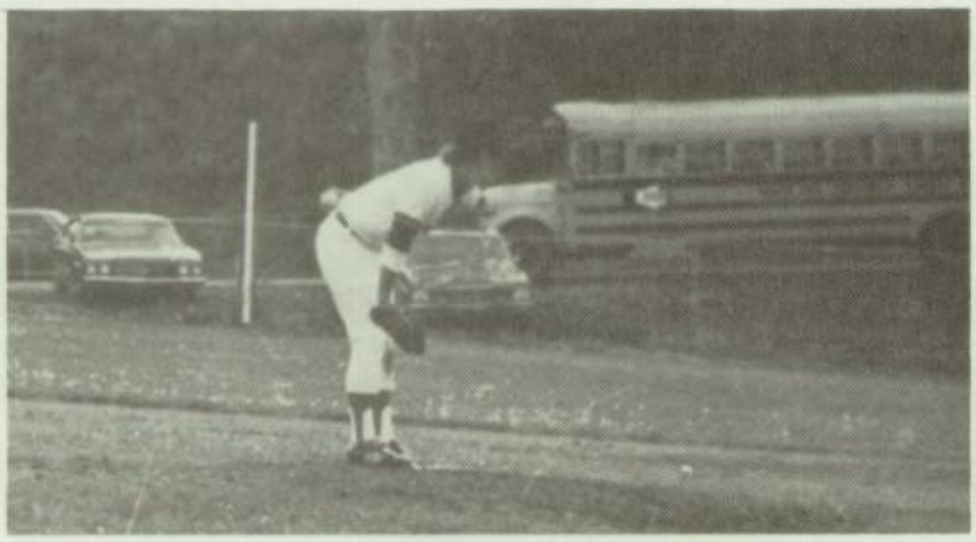
Apaches Swing Big Sticks

Baseball again is a winning tradition at Wabash High. After twenty games, the Apaches had a 15-5 record.

Stan and Joel Hettsmansperger were the one-two punch of the pic and ng staff. compiling with a won-lost record' and was.

On the offense, the Apaches won most of their games by the use of the big innings, scoring five or six times. As a team, the Apaches were loaded with good hitters and they also took advantage of opponents mistakes.

After this season the team will lose seniors Scott Shears and Jeff Passwater. Shears' a fine second baseman, and Passwater a relief pitcher.



Junior pitcher Thom Pence hides the ball from the cathcer.

Using their talent to the fullest' the 1976 track and field squad had another fine year with a good record with a few meets left.

The team was paced mostly by underclassmen. Sophomores Tim Mylin and Tim Miller were consistent winners,Mylin in the hurdles and Miller in the high jump. Another sophomore Phil Treckman , was one of the many good runners.

The team, coached by Mr. Bob Milton, finished second in the county track meet and finished second in the Central Indiana Conference Meet.

Don't these fans look excited?

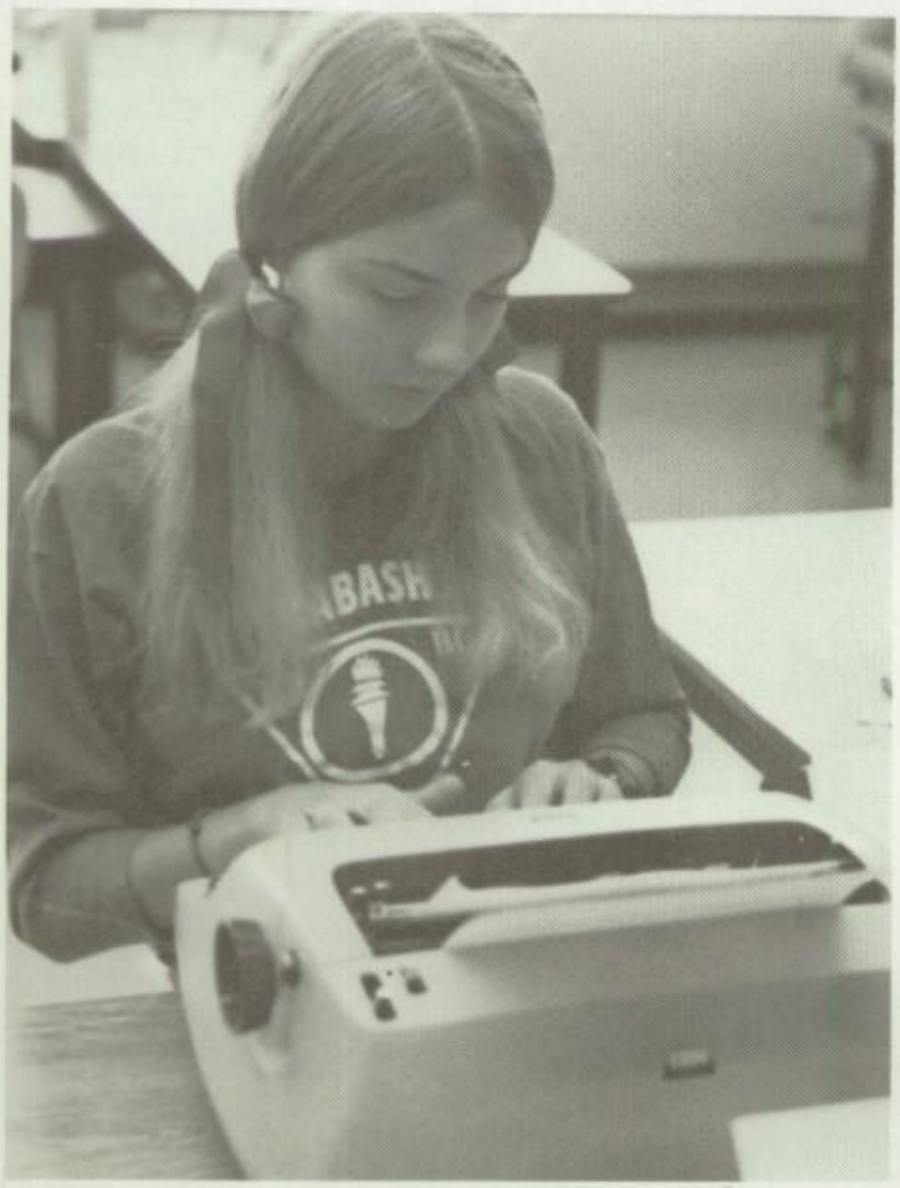
Mr. Schuldt directs his attention to the matter at hand. He doubles as athletic director.



Mitzi Middaugh concentrates on improving her typing ability.

Mrs. Rogers goes over typing assignments with her fine eye. Detecting errors is her speciality.

Mrs. Sodervick sponsors the Future Secretaries Association in addition to her teaching duties.

Debits and credits can sometimes be confusing, but they are an intregal part of accounting. Squiggles and wiggily lines may seem like an ancient form of communication, but they really are shorthand symbols. Typewriters may appear confusing at first, but a typing student soon learns to master the machine.

Accounting, shorthand, and typing are only three of the classes offered by the business department. More and more students are signing up for business classes than in previous years. Business classes enable a student to get a job after graduation, or to put their skills to good use in college.

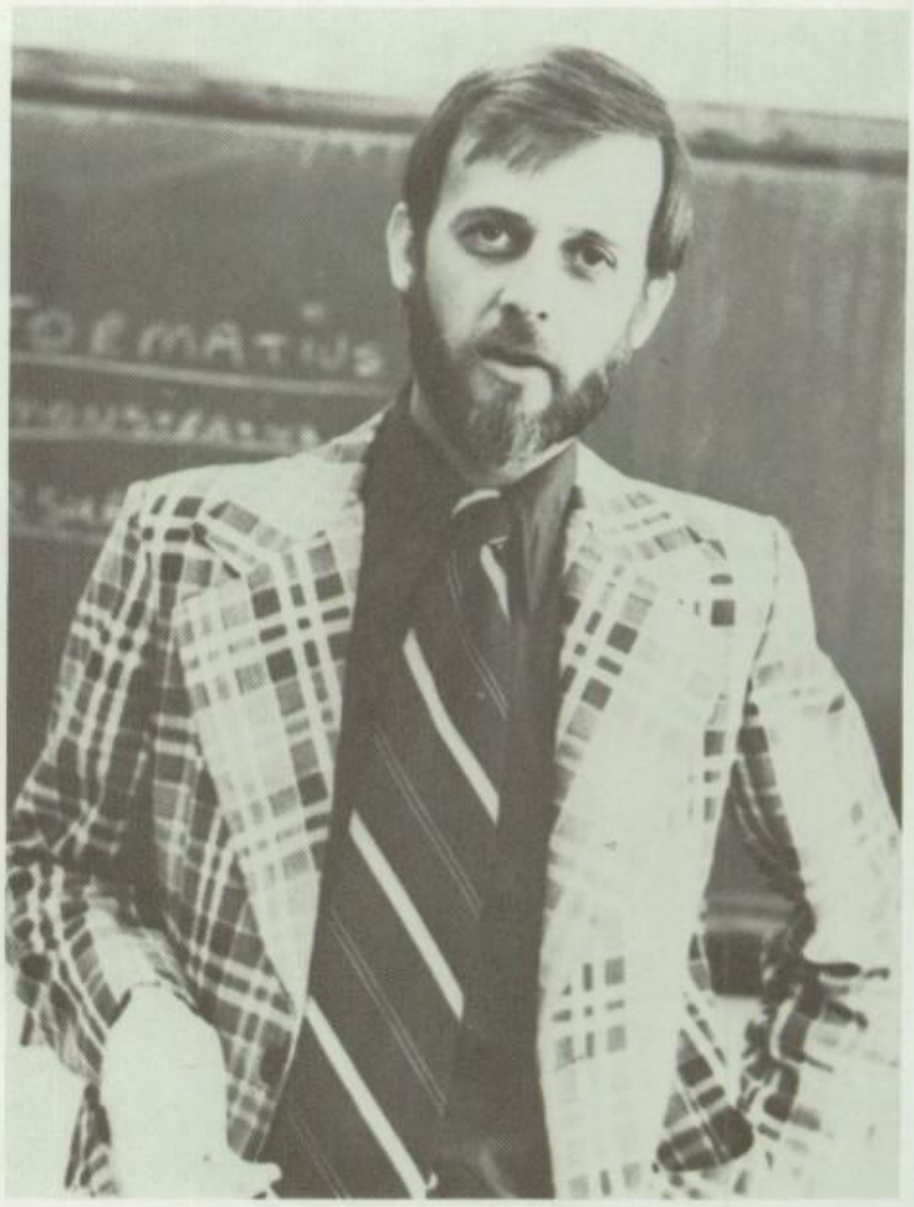
C. O. E., or Co-operative Education, is a fairly new program. Students may get jobs and earn both money and credits towards graduation. Guys, as well as girls, were enrolled in this years' program.

Lisa Whitmyre transfers what she is hearing into the language of shorthand.

Mrs. Christle explains the debit and credit system of accounting to Tracy Bone.

Latin is also taught by Miss Watkins.

mastering english



Mr. McColley surveys new speech talent.

What is Wabash High School without English classes? Students tend to come to life in English. Think of the demonstration speeches, the dancing lessons, the circle discussions. What student will ever forget the toil and trouble of the research paper?

Different types of classes were offered this year. The survey classes are for college bound students. Emphasis is placed on literature, composition, and grammar as it has been learned traditionally. The elective classes were designed to focus on one particular genre of literature and practical English usage. A variety of classes were available covering topics such as science fiction writing and sports writing.

Journalism also falls under the English department. Mrs. Ashmore advises the journalism students on the proper way to publish a newspaper. Susan Shambaugh was editor of the bi weekly paper, the Orange and Black , and Julie Alger struggled through the trials and tribulations of being yearbook editor. Journalism 1 students got practice in for next year's publications by taking over the paper the last two issues of the year.

Mrs. Vandegrift leads juniors in their guest for more the English language, its grammar and its literature.

Glimpses into the past, present, and future are caught by social studies classes. There are no limits to subjects discussed. Events in pre-historic times come under as close scrutiny as events in the news. Even slight diversions such as an occasional Jeopardy game are not ruled otout.

Electives are available in the social studies department as well as the English department. Sophomores and juniors may choose from many offered courses. The Civil War, the Depression Era, or even great people may be studied.

Juniors are also able to elect to take government in their junior year instead of waiting to cram it in their last year.

Science classes are always in the back of a student's mind, even after graduation. The first glimpse of an organism through a microscope, counting the seconds an experiment takes, and directing helpless beings are all a part of the scientific world.

Students of science were treated to field trips this year. Eli Lilly in Indianapolis was the first trip. Students were able to see the making of drugs and cosmetics. Scrapbook Of Memories

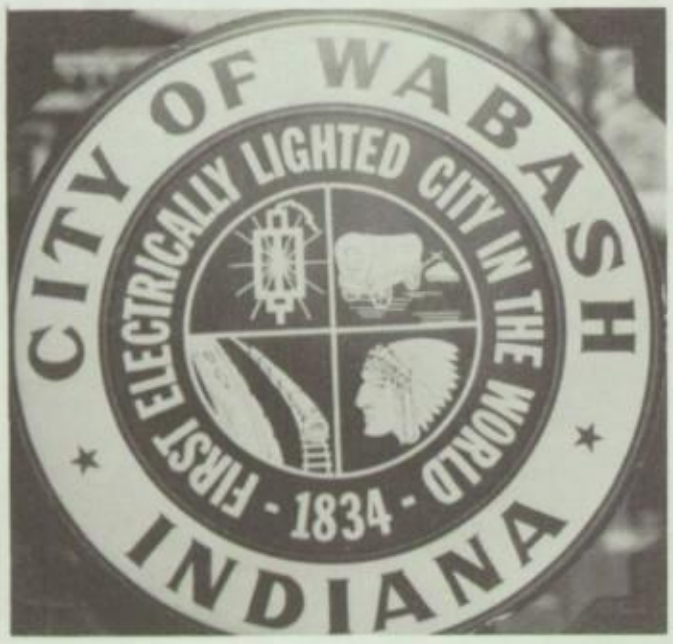
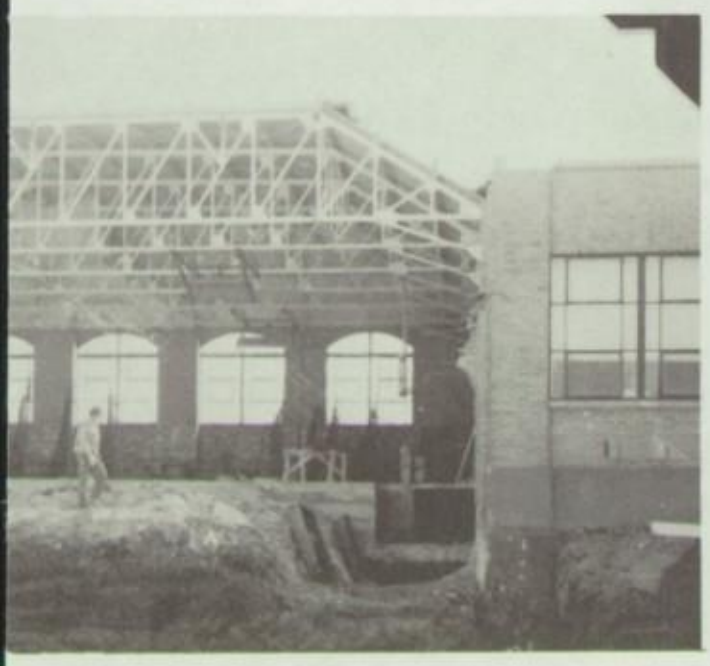
You have carefully turned the pages of your life. The last page is gone. A chill creeps up your spine. The chill surpasses when you realize that all the things you did are carefully placed in your scrapbook, and anytime you wish to relive your past just listen to the crackling pages of your SCRAPBOOK OF MEMORIES.





Pictured above are the senior section editors who compiled the 1976 1976 Scrapbook of Memories. Gary Martin did the sports section; Julie Alger made general plans, did the divider pages, and the index (Editor); Terri Gallahue did the academic section; Rhonda Foltz put the school life section together; DeAnne Adamson sold and made up ads; Cindy Raver was in charge of the junior, sophomore, and organizations sections. David Fred assisted DeAnne with the ads.

Special thanks to: Vickie Hein who isn't pictured above, Vickie was senior section editor. Craig Penn who typed copy for this year's SYCAMORE and complied the index. David Banks, Doug Tanner and Lori Shappell, who make up the camera club , that furnished all candid and organization shots used in the book. Mr. Doyne Sargent, photography advisor, who helped develop some pictures in his spare time and advised the camera club. Mrs. Jody Ashmore who lost alot of sleep and various articles while trying to finish this book. David Alger, Perry Harmen, Jerry Hoy, Scott Blue,Lavonne McDaniels, Julie Fredericks, Jody Kramer, Jan Coplea and Greg Waller, the J-1 class who helped finish the book. Thanks.
